Vance Briceland has had sixteen novels published for both teens and adults, and has made it a mission to give writers both the tools and the confidence to turn their dreams into reality.

Hesiod and Friends | Anne Gilhuly

Hesiod was a farmer and poet, a contemporary of Homer in the late 8th Century, BCE, and perhaps the first personality in European literature: unlike Homer, Hesiod tells us something about himself. Writing in the same epic style, obviously out of the same tradition of oral performance, he is nevertheless very much his own man. His works are brief: the Theogony gives us an account of the gods from the beginning of the world; Works and Days is, at first glance, on the order of a farmers'almanac. We will give particular consideration to two of his "characters", Pandora and Prometheus.

Please read the Theogony for the first class. Text: HESIOD: THEOGONY, WORKS, AND DAYS, SHIELD, 2ND ed., translated by Apostolos Athanassakis, Johns Hopkins University Press, $16.62 from Amazon.

When we write about these experiences, we challenge ourselves and discover the process that we - who thought we couldn't write - have a lot to write about. This course offers adults a relaxed environment in which to learn strategies to begin or expand a memoir. What better gift for the next generation than our stories for all to read!

Images of Chinese Women in Traditional Chinese Literature: Dutiful? Shrew? Passive? Tiger Mother? | Theresa Kelleher

Course will examine the portrayal of women from the earliest Book of Poetry to China's most famous novel Dream of the Red Chamber, to see the wide variety of female characters presented. We will look at the writings that set out in strict terms the proper behavior of women and then at examples from literature of how women actually conducted themselves, often in ways that challenged these norms in lively and colorful ways. Tai Chi | Will Morrison

Immerse yourself to see the benefits of Tai Chi. This class begins with an immersion into the fundamental movements of tai chi in order to discover and feel the internal dynamics that lead to the transformative nature of this classical Chinese practice. The movements improve balance, mental sharpness, flexibility and health. Harvard Medical School research ranks tai chi as a 'top five' exercise. Will Morrison has studied with Ed Young since 1981, a senior student of Professor Cheng Man Ching, who popularized the Yang Style Tai Chi in the 1960s and 70s which has become the most prevalent style worldwide. Will is a certified "Tai Chi Fundamentals" instructor. TCF is an approach that makes Tai Chi more accessible to students of all ages and for those with pain and physical limitation. This class has proven successful through Zoom. As the weather warms in March, the class can elect to meet in a park in central Greenwich.

Meditation as Medication | Paul Epstein

Mindfulness for Stress and Emotional Resilience

Research shows that 80 % of visits to the family doctor are for stress related complaints. Stress and trauma contribute to mental, emotional and physical symptoms and chronic disease and cause people to suffer with anxiety, depression, chronic pain, digestive disorders, headaches, heart disease, PTSD and more. These have been and remain exceedingly stressful and challenging times for all coping with the corona virus, climate change issues (wild fires and storms), a depressed economy and divided nation and of course the usual stresses of life.

You can enhance your ability to adapt to stressful situations or crises. More resilient people are able to "roll with the punches" and adapt to adversity without lasting difficulties; less resilient people have a harder time with stress and life changes. Whatever your challenge, through mind-body skills of mindfulness, compassion and cultivating resilience. you can learn to face your stresses and traumas in a way that supports and decreases, prevents and heals symptoms and diseases.

Serenity is not freedom from the storm, it is peace amidst the storm.
